PRINCIPAL'S NEWS

Hi to everyone and welcome back!

To our new students - welcome to Cranbourne Primary School.

We are looking forward to a busy and exciting term, with lots of fun and interesting things happening. Some of our special events are:

*Multicultural Day—Friday 27 July. We have organised activities and a visiting musical performance for this day.

*Student Progress discussions—week commencing 30 July. Forms were sent home this week. Please make sure you return your form by Monday 23rd July.

*Tuesday 24th July -2 teams (Netball and soccer) will be competing in the next round of Lightning Prem. Winter sports competition. Good luck to those students. We are very proud of your achievement!

*Children's Book Week (20—24 August). We have an illustrator of children's literature visiting on Monday 20th August, to work with students on illustrations in books.

*Monday 27th August—Curriculum Day for staff. No students at school on this day!

*Grades 3—6 School Camp (Wednesday 5th—Friday 7th September)

I would also like to advise you that Cheryl is currently on leave. I will be in the Acting Principal role until her return.

FROM THE OFFICE

School uniforms are very expensive to purchase so should be looked after! Sadly, a lot of students "forget" their jumpers and jackets and unless they are named, they end up in Lost Property in the BER or not ever found.

Please ensure you write your child's name in permanent pen in large letters across the inside of the collar of their uniform so they can be returned to them when found.

First and last name is the best way to ensure safe return of clothing!

'Learning Talk'

Every two weeks we will be asking families to participate in 'Learning Talks' with their children. By discussing topics and ideas prior to learning, you will help your children get ahead in their personal learning. Students will follow up in class with activities that are related to their 'Learning Talks'.

Foundation

In our next unit of investigation topic we will be focussing on our family history. Take the time to talk to your child about where they were born, what country your family originated from and special events and occasions that your family celebrate. Take the time to look through old photos and discuss the memories.

Junior

For our unit of investigation we are focusing on History. You can talk to your child about how school has changed over time and share experiences about your time at school compared to your child's time at school. You may also like to look at photos of school from the 1900s compared to now and in between.

Middle

In our History unit of investigation this term we will be discussing students backgrounds and celebrating how they differ from others in the classroom. We will also be looking into indigenous peoples from different countries around the world. At home, discuss the countries your families originated from and reasons behind the celebrations you take part in. Research how the traditions you hold link to those of the first people.

Senior

Our History investigation unit this term will focus on Australian Colonies and Australia as a Nation. Discuss how Australia has developed as a Nation. The causes and reasons why people have migrated to Australia from Europe and Asia. Talk with your child about significant contributions of individuals and groups to changing Australian society.

Thank you

Thank you to everyone who has donated to the Art Room! We've had an overwhelming response therefore will not need any more donations after this week!

The ART ROOM needs you!

In preparation for some construction projects I am planning for later in the year, I would be really grateful if you could collect and bring into school all your plastic milk, juice and soft drink lids.

I will put a tub outside the Art Room for them to be left in.

Thank you all so much.

1 in 20 children is born with a birth defect or genetic disease.

2018 marks the 25th Anniversary of the Jeans for Genes campaign. That's 25 years of supporting world-leading research into genetic diseases, cancer, birth defects and neurological disorders.

To support this great cause, we are inviting students to wear Jeans to school on Friday 3rd August.

The payment for wearing jeans will be a gold coin donation.

We will also have a donation box at the office if any families would like to make a separate donation.

Please support this very worthy cause by allowing your child or children to wear their jeans on:

FRIDAY 3RD AUGUST

As we approach the School Holiday period, the following article from Headspace may be of interest.

Keeping your child happy, healthy and safe during the school holidays headspace is encouraging parents and carers to think about their child's mental health over the holidays, with research showing 1 in 7 school-aged children has experienced a mental health condition.

headspace Head of Direct Clinical Services Vikki Ryall said holidays were a good time to tune in to a child's emotions, pay deeper attention to any unusual behaviour, and try to open up communication.

"A break from school and lots of extra hours together as a family can be a great experience, but for some families it is a challenging time when concerns emerge," Ms Ryall said.

"Some young people find it isolating to be away from their usual school routines and peer support network. For those struggling to make friends, it can be a lonely time when everyone else seems to be having fun.

"It can be hard as a parent to work out the difference between typical behaviour such as moodiness and irritability, and the signs of an emerging mental health issue. But if you are seeing behaviour that concerns you, help is available."

Mental health disorders are prevalent in young people. Almost one in seven school-aged children in Australia – an estimated 560,000 students – had a mental disorder in 2013-14 according to the Telethon Kids Institute Young Minds Matter survey. Examples included anxiety, depression, self-harming behaviours and eating disorders.

Ms Ryall said parents seeing warning signs should encourage their son or daughter to talk openly and honestly about what they are experiencing, and ask what they need.

Most importantly, she said parents should listen to their child's fears and concerns without judgement and be patient when responding.

"If your child is distressed, don't tell them to 'just calm down' or 'get over it'; they need to know you are taking them seriously. Avoid judgement and reassure them you are there for them," she said.

"Let them know that if they don't want to talk to you, they can talk to other adults they trust or to health professionals through a service like headspace. It's really important for you to support your child in seeking help elsewhere."

There are many other steps parents and carers can take during these holidays to support children who are having a tough time.

"Simple things such as eating three meals a day and getting a good night's sleep are important. Maintain a routine to ensure your child is not regularly staying up late, or sleeping in very late the next day," she said.

"Involve your child in decision-making and give them responsibility at home. One way to do this is to ask them to choose a meal and help prepare it."

Doing a project - especially one a parent can be part of, such as painting a room – is another way to help young people feel engaged and create an environment where it's easier to talk.

Other holiday activities to encourage include:

- Volunteering: For ideas on how young people can make a difference visit: govolunteer.com.au, volunteer.com.au or volunteeringaustralia.org
- Learning something new: Whether its photography, music, sport or dance, contact local councils and leisure centres to find out what's on for children and young people.
- Organising and exploring: Make a list of places to visit and things to do, and get out there!
- Creative projects: Get those creative juices flowing. Revamp a bedroom or create an art piece.
- Getting active: Encourage young people to spend time outside, visit a park with friends or family, or walk the dog around the block.
